GENERAL

A Further Look at the Blue-Collar Blues. By Peter Henle. In Monthly Labor Review, November 1971, p. 40.

Excerpt of paper, "Economic Status of the Blue-Collar Worker, 1959-69," presented at the American Statistical Association meeting, August 24, 1971, Fort Collins, Colorado.

Compromise Agreement as a Means of Work Injury Settlement. By Sam B. Barton, Professor of Economics, North Texas State University. In Monthly Labor Review, September 1971; also Reprint 2763.

Explores a procedure known as "compromise settlement agreements" used by insurance companies to settle industrial injury cases. Findings based on study of a random sample of cases from files of Texas Industrial Accident Board for fiscal year ending August 31, 1967.

Economic Growth and Ecology. In Monthly Labor Review, November 1971.

Presents two views on environmental costs of economic growth in the United States and two ways to curb them. Excerpts of papers presented at a Forum on Energy, Economic Growth, and the Environment, sponsored by Resources for the Future, Washington, D.C.

Theme indicates that substitution of synthetic for natural products has hastened pollution of the water, the air, and the soil.

An Economist's View. By Walter W. Heller, Regents' Professor of Economics, University of Minnesota. pp. 14-21; also Reprint 2769.

Heller suggests use of the price system to raise the cost of pollution and spur technology to curb it.

Historical volume of major statistical series produced by the Bureau. Related series from other governmental agencies and foreign countries. Contains 166 tables, each starting at the earliest point in time from which a continuous, reliable, and consistent series can be carried.

Has the Blue-Collar Worker's Position Worsened? By Sar A. Levitan and Robert Taggart III, Center for Manpower Policy Studies, The George Washington University. In Monthly Labor Review, September 1971, pp. 23-29; also Reprint 2761.

Adaptation from final chapter of Blue-Collar Workers, a symposium on middle America edited by Mr. Levitan. Position of blue-collar workers in recent years and their adjustment and adaptability to new social and economic changes is examined.

Historical and out-of-print publications, as listed on p. 50, are now available through National Technical Information Service (NTIS). Cost generally is $3 hard copy; 95 cents microfiche copy. Write to address listed.

Incidence of Drug Use Among Workers. Research summary, Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, p. 61.

Study on use of drugs in State of New York, conducted by New York State Narcotic Addiction Control Commission, suggests 1 out of 8 employed workers is a regular user of legal or illegal drugs.

NOTE: A limited supply of Reported Drug Use by Employed Workers in New York State, August 1970 (highlights of study), is available without charge from the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Evaluation, and Research, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Inflation Versus Unemployment: Another View of the Trade-Off. By Stanley S. Wallack, Assistant Professor of Economics, University of Illinois. In Monthly Labor Review, November 1971, pp. 49-54.

Comments on article by George Perry (Monthly Labor Review, February 1971). Supplies alternative explanations to the wage change-unemployment relationship—the traditional Phillips curve—and attempts to see if wage changes were greater than expected for any unemployment rate in the late 1960's.

Major Programs 1971: Bureau of Labor Statistics. 46 pp., 1971. Free.

Presented in tabular format are selected characteristics of more than 50 major BLS programs, grouped into related subject-matter areas. Frequency with which data are made available, principal publications in which they appear, and some principal uses of data are shown.

Monthly Labor Review. Issue for each month, July-December 1971. (Annual subscription, $9; $11.25 foreign; single copy, 75 cents, GPO.)

Authoritative research journal. Each month includes special articles on labor economics, working conditions, and industrial relations; serves as a publications medium for a wide range of other material on labor conditions and developments in U.S. and abroad.

Policymaking and the Role of Labor Statistics. In Monthly Labor Review, September 1971.

The North American Conference on Labor Statistics was held June 14-17, 1971, San Juan, Puerto Rica. Its theme: "Statistics for the Americas: The Role of Labor Statistics in Economic and Social Policymaking." Following are excerpts from papers presented at the conference:

Statistical Needs for Setting Policy. By Albert Rees, Professor of Economics, Princeton University. pp. 43-45.

Wage-Price Restraints in Construction. By Michael H. Moskow, Deputy Under Secretary of Labor for Economic Affairs and Program Coordination. pp. 46-47.

Economic Indicators Issued by States. By Harry F. Stark, Institute of Management and Labor Relations, Rutgers University, The State University of New Jersey. pp. 47-50.

Productivity, Wages, and Prices. (Text and tabulations.) Release, quarterly. (Mailing list 310. Free.)

Reviews output per man-hour in the private economy; average real weekly earnings; average size of union contract settlements; price rises in Consumer Price and Wholesale Price Indexes.

The Labor Market 'Twist', 1964-69. By Denis F. Johnston, Office of Manpower and Employment Statistics. In Monthly Labor Review, July 1971, pp. 26-36; also Special Labor Force Report No. 133 (Reprint 2746).

Report on extent the business boom of 1964-69 benefited the male labor force (18 years and over): What were the effects by age, race, and education? What happened to the labor market "twist"? Findings were that rapid economic growth halted decline in position of less educated male workers relative to the better educated.

ABSENTEEISM

Improving Productivity: Labor and Management Approaches. See under Productivity and Technological Developments.

CIVIL RIGHTS

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Fact Sheet on Collective Bargaining. Provides perspective on scheduled negotiations; key features of major work stoppage history.

Bituminous Coal Industry, 1950-70. Press release, USDL 71-430, August 2, 1971.

Longshore Industry, 1958-70. Press release, USDL 71-470, September 10, 1971.

Major Agreement Expirations. In each issue of Monthly Labor Review.

Municipal Collective Bargaining Agreements, 1970. Summary report, 8 pp., 1971.

Summary results of first survey of municipal collective bargaining agreements. Purpose of study was to furnish information on the prevalence of particular provisions presently included in contracts and related documents, and to serve as a benchmark against which to measure subsequent developments.

NOTE: Additional details will be provided in a forthcoming bulletin.

Municipal Labor-Management Relations: Chronology of Compensation Developments in Milwaukee, 1960-70. Bulletin 1720, 118 pp., 1971. $1.25, GPO.

Presents a summary of major changes in salaries and supplementary (fringe) benefits for municipal employees, subject to regulation of Milwaukee Common Council.

Municipal Public Employees Associations. Bulletin 1702, 46 pp., 1971. 50 cents, GPO.

One of series of studies dealing with public employee collective bargaining and labor relations. Analyzes the basic characteristics, growth and structure of municipal public employee associations; also offers a brief look at employer-employee relations.

Public File of Collective Bargaining Agreements. File of approximately 5,000 agreements, including virtually all agreements in United States covering 1,000 workers or more, exclusive of railroads, airlines, and government. Except for a few of these agreements, file is open to public use; located in Washington, D. C. Copies of specific agreements available at cost of copying. Cost of reproducing submitted upon request.

Should Collective Bargaining be Revamped? In Monthly Labor Review, August 1971, pp. 42-59; also Reprint 2756.

Excerpts adapted from five papers presented at Third Annual Collective Bargaining Forum held in New York City in May 1971 by the Institute of Collective Bargaining and Group Relations.

Emergency Disputes and Public Policy. By Professor Charles C. Killingsworth, Michigan State University, pp. 42-45.

Income Policy and the Price System. By Professor George W. Taylor, Wharton School, Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania, pp. 45-48.

Inflation Policies and Collective Bargaining. By Professor Lloyd Ulman, University of California, Berkeley, pp. 48-52.

Employee Rights Under an Agreement: A Current Evaluation. By Professor Benjamin Aaron, University of California, Los Angeles, pp. 52-56.

Social Cost of Bargaining: A European Perspective. By Professor Benjamin C. Roberts, London School of Economic and Political Science, pp. 56-59.

The Influence of Selected Industry Characteristics on Negotiated Settlements. BLS Staff Paper No. 5, 30 pp., 1971. 25 cents, GPO.

An exploratory attempt to determine whether differences among industries in the pattern of negotiated wage adjustments over time are related to industry characteristics in a systematic way.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING PROVISIONS

Layoff and Recall Provisions in Major Agreements. By Winston L. Tillery, Division of Industrial Relations. In Monthly Labor Review, July 1971, pp. 41-46.

Summarizes examination of major collective bargaining agreements (excluding railroads, airlines, and Government), 1970-71. Of 1,845 agreements analyzed, approximately 80 percent contained layoff provisions.

NOTE: More detailed account to appear in forthcoming bulletin in BLS 1425 series, Major Collective Bargaining Agreements: Layoff, Recall and Worksharing Provisions. Previous study Bulletin 1209 (1957), Analysis of Layoff, Recall, and Worksharing Procedures in Union Contracts.

CONSTRUCTION

Construction Manpower Needs by 1980. See under Projections.

Labor Requirements for Construction of Single-Family Houses. By Robert Ball and Larry Ludwig, Division of Productivity Research. In Monthly Labor Review, September 1971, pp. 12-14; also Reprint 2759.

Results of BLS study designed to measure the number of man-hours required for each $1,000 of single-family house construction price. Covers on-site labor requirements, distribution of on-site man-hours by occupation and type of contractor, 1969, and distribution of costs.

NOTE: More detailed account will appear in forthcoming report.

COURT DECISIONS AND AGENCY RULINGS

DISPLACED WORKERS

Defense Engineers: Do They Have Special Reemployment Problems? By B. Curtis Eaton, Assistant Professor of Economics, University of British Columbia. In Monthly Labor Review, July 1971, pp. 52-54; also Reprint 2751.

Study deals with the transferability of engineering and scientific personnel from defense to nondefense work. Compares overall experiences of workers from two defense-related layoffs as result of cancellation and completion of contracts: Boeing and Company, Seattle, December 1963; and Martin Company, Denver, late 1964.

EDUCATION

Educational Attainment of Workers, March 1971. By William V. Deutermann, Division of Labor Force Studies. In Monthly Labor Review, November 1971, pp. 30-35; also Special Labor Force Report No. 140.

March 1971 survey shows median education level of workers has risen only slightly above the 1959 level of 12 years or high school completion. Survey results describe and analyze changes in educational attainment of workers between March 1959 and 1971; reasons for changes.

EMPLOYMENT AND UNEMPLOYMENT

An Analysis of Michigan's Experience with Work Incentives. By Gary L. Appel and Robert E. Schlenker, Institute for Interdisciplinary Studies, Minneapolis, Minn. In Monthly Labor Review, September 1971, pp. 15-22; also Reprint 2760.

An investigation was made of Michigan's new financial work incentive program, begun in 1969, to determine its effect on encouraging welfare recipients to seek employment. The method of analysis is presented for an evaluation of the findings.

Employment and Earnings. Monthly report. (Annual subscription, $10; $12.50 foreign; single copy, $1, GPO.)

Detailed establishment data on employment, hours, earnings, turnover, job vacancy, and employment status of war veterans, insured unemployment, nationally and by State and area; household data on labor force, total employment and unemployment; special articles presenting data on various phases of labor force; charts also included.

Special articles and tables:

July

Quarterly Averages—Seasonally Adjusted Household Data, 1968 to date, pp. 112-130 (Vietnam Era War Veterans, pp. 127-130). [1]

August

Women Employees on Nonagricultural Payrolls, by Industry, pp. 58-64.[2]

September

BLS Establishment Estimates Revised to March 1970 Benchmark Levels, pp. 18-30; also employment estimates for some industries not published monthly—March 1959, and 1961-70 (table 7). Reprint.[3]
Major Industry Series, Revised to 1970 Benchmarks, 1969 to date, pp. 126-134. Current Seasonal Adjustment Factors for Establishment Data, pp. 135-137. Output Per Man-Hour, Hourly Compensation, and Unit Labor Costs, Private Economy—Seasonally Adjusted, p. 104.

December

Employment Effects of Reduced Defense Spending. By Richard P. Oliver, Division of Economic Growth. In Monthly Labor Review, December 1971, pp. 3-11; also Reprint 2776.

[1]Quarterly data included in January, April, July, and October issues.

[2]Quarterly data included in February, May, August, and November issues.

[3] Beginning with this issue, all national employment series in the establishment survey have been adjusted to March 1970 benchmarks. Data in table C-10 (indexes of man-hours) and tables E-1, E-2, E-3, and E-4 (job vacancies) have not been adjusted to reflect the effects of these benchmarks.

Third in series presenting estimates of private employment generated in each industry by Department of Defense (DOD) military expenditures, 1968-71. Results show loss of approximately 1.7 million jobs over the period.

Note: Previous articles: Monthly Labor Review, February 1970, pp. 3-10 and Monthly Labor Review, September 1967, pp. 9-16.

Employment in the Atomic Energy Field. By John M. Lukasiewicz, Division of Manpower and Occupational Outlook. In Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, pp. 51-54; summary, Occupational Outlook Quarterly, Summer 1971, pp. 34-35.

Employment in private sector of atomic energy field increased from 1963 to 1970; in contrast, government-owned establishments showed a decline. Findings based on annual survey. Tabular data presents employment by type of establishment, segment, occupation, region, and size of establishment; also scientists and engineers in research and development by segment.

Employment in Perspective. Series of special reports on workers in and out of the labor force.

Discouraged Workers and Recent Changes in Labor Force Growth. BLS Report 396, 10 pp., 1971; press release, USDL 71-453, August 26, 1971; research summary, Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, p. 60 Free.

Discussion of persons outside the labor force (discouraged workers) who want work, but are not actively seeking a job because they think their search for one would be in vain.

Provides 1970 annual average regional unemployment changes by race, age, and sex; occupation, and full-and part-time status.

The Negro Employment Situation. BLS Report 391, 12 pp., 1971; research summary, Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, p. 60. Free.

Analyzes recent developments of Negroes in labor force relative to whites: employment, unemployment, and other labor force characteristics, and progress up occupational ladder.

Employment of School-Age Youth. By Howard Hayghe, Division of Labor Force Studies. In Monthly Labor Review, August 1971, pp. 13-18; also Special Labor Force Report No. 135 (Reprint 2752).

Report based on October 1970 sample Current Population Survey relating to persons 16 to 24 years of age in civilian noninstitutional population. Findings show that for first time in 10 years (October 1960-70) there was no significant increase in number of students in labor force.

Employment Situation of Vietnam Era Veterans, June 1971. Press release, USDL 72-390, July 15, 1971; summary, Monthly Labor Review, September 1971, pp. 3-11; also Special Labor Force Report No. 137 (Reprint 2758).

Employment and unemployment statistics of male Vietnam Era veterans compared to nonveterans (20 to 29 years old), January 1969 to June 1971; also, second quarter averages, 1970 and 1971, by age and race.

Experimental Survey of Occupations in Metal working. By George T. Silvestri, Office of Manpower and Employment Statistics. In Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, pp. 18-20.

Highlights of an experimental survey of employment for selected occupations in six major industry groups (1968): ordinance and accessories, fabricated metal products, machinery, electrical machinery and equipment, transportation equipment, and professional instruments. First time such data available for such a large segment of industry and for so many occupations.

First Comprehensive Survey of Employment by Occupations Soon to Get Underway. See under Program Note.

Marital and Family Characteristics of Workers, March 1971. Summary/Special Labor Force Report, 5 pp., 1971.

Advance summary of March 1970 and March 1971 statistics on employment status of persons by marital status, sex, color, and family head.

Multiple Jobholding in 1970 and 1971. By Howard V. Hayghe and Kopp Michelotti, Division of Labor Force Studies. In Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, pp. 38-45; also Special Labor Force Report No. 139 (Reprint 2767).

Findings of latest survey of persons 16 years old and over holding two jobs or more (multiple jobholders) show very little change compared with the previous survey (May 1970). Includes a discussion of the relationship between the unemployment rate and multiple jobholding, earnings on second jobs, and seasonality and trends.

Occupational Characteristics of Urban Workers. By Christopher G. Gellner, Division of Employment and Unemployment Analysis. In Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, pp. 21-32; also Special Labor Force Report No. 138 (Reprint 2765).

Two-thirds of all workers in United States reside in metropolitan areas, and most are concentrated in highly skilled occupations. Study explores major differences in occupational distribution of employees among large metropolitan areas (20 SMSA's) and between their central cities and suburban rings; also attempts to determine whether such skill differences have any bearing on the disparity between central city and suburban unemployment rates.

Occupational Employment Survey in Printing and Publishing. By George T. Silvestri, Office of Manpower and Employment Statistics. Research summary, Monthly Labor Review, November 1971, pp. 56-57.

According to summary results of March 1970 survey, nearly 3 out of 5 employees were production and maintenance workers. Includes tabulation of estimated employment by selected occupations in printing and publishing industry.

NOTE: More detailed tabulations are available upon request.

Occupational Impact of Defense Expenditures. By Richard Dempsey and Douglas Schmude, Division of Manpower and Occupational Outlook. In Monthly Labor Review, December 1971, pp. 12-15; also Reprint 2777.

Occupations affected greatest by defense expenditures are those heavily concentrated in defense-related work and sensitive to changes in resources devoted to national security. Discusses the differing occupational impact of defense purchases, 1970, and estimates how reduction in these purchases in recent years has adversely affected employment levels in a wide range of occupations.

Occupational Migration, Discrimination, and the Central City Labor Force. By David E. Kaun and William Lentz, University of California. In Monthly Labor Review, December 1971, pp. 57-60.

Flow of Negroes out of urban areas is another dimension of unemployment situation in large SMSA's. The authors suggest that analysis of this factor will help in an understanding of economic position of inner city Negro. Presents conclusions resulting from test made using a New Occupational Flow measure.

NOTE: A comment on article by Paul O. Flaim in May 1968 Monthly Labor Review, Special Labor Force Report 96.

The Dual Labor Market and Manpower Policy. By Robert E. Klitgaard, Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University. In Monthly Labor Review, November 1971, pp. 45-48; also Reprint 2774.

Comments and discussion on a new concept, "dual labor market," developed by Peter B. Doeringer and Michael J. Piore in their recent book, Internal Labor Markets and Manpower Analysis. Their theory separates jobs into two categories: primary and secondary; a new attempt to reorder thinking about employment problems.

The Employment Problems of Older Workers. Bulletin 1721, 46 pp., 1971. 50 cents, GPO.

Presentation of positive and negative aspects of the older workers' position in the labor market, as reflected in latest available data—1970-71. Prepared for the White House Conference on Aging held on November 29, 1971.

The Employment Situation. Release, monthly. (Mailing list 365. Free.)

Estimates of size and characteristics of labor force, total employed and unemployed; employment, hours, and earnings estimates by industry.

The Employment Situation in Urban Poverty Neighborhoods. Release, quarterly. (Mailing list 365. Free.)

Unemployment Statistics and What They Mean. By John E. Bregger, Division of Employment and Unemployment Analysis. In Monthly Labor Review, November 1971, pp. 22-29; also Reprint 2770.

Discusses some common misconceptions about what unemployment data represent; explains meaning of "statistically significant;" and offers pointers on how to interpret fluctuations.

Unutilized Manpower in Poverty Areas of Six U.S. Cities. By Harvey J. Hilaski, Division of Current Employment Analysis. In Monthly Labor Review, December 1971, pp. 45-52; also Reprint 2780.

A brief summary of why poverty area residents are outside the labor force. Focuses on people of working age neither working nor looking for work during week prior to being interviewed in Atlanta, Chicago, Detroit, Houston, Los Angeles, and New York.

NOTE: More detailed accounts appear in Regional Reports for each area.

Work Experience of the Population in 1970. By Anne M. Young and Kopp Michelotti, Division of Labor Force Studies. In Monthly Labor Review, December 1971, pp. 35-44; also Special Labor Force Report No. 141 (Reprint 2779).

Presents highlights of the 1971 survey of the working age population. Report shows that economic slowdown of 1970 contributed to first decrease in number of year-round full-time workers in over a decade. Extent of employment discussed and rise in unemployment by age, sex, race, and other factors, 1967-70, analyzed.

FOREIGN LABOR

Comparing Employment Shifts in 10 Industrialized Countries. By Constance Sorrentino, Division of Foreign Labor Statistics and Trade. In Monthly Labor Review, October 1971, pp. 3-11; also Reprint 2764.

Provides data on comparative civilian employment for three sectors—agriculture, industry, and services—in 10 developed countries (United States, Belgium, Canada, France, Italy, Germany, Japan, Netherlands, Sweden, and United Kingdom).

1950-70. Foreign country data adjusted to United States concepts in most cases; adjustments made and sources are discussed in appendix.

Special articles:

April-May

Combined April and May issues deal essentially with migration of workers for economic reasons—migration within countries and between countries: Western Europe, U.S.S.R. and Yugoslavia, Near East and South Asia, Africa, East Asia and the Pacific and South America Republics, pp. 1-83.
U.S. Department of State Living Quarters Allowances in Foreign Posts, by Salary Group, April 1971, pp. 84-89; also Reprint. [1]

FRINGE BENEFITS

Fringe Benefits of Urban Workers. By Lester L. Petermann, Division of Occupational Wage Structures. In Monthly Labor Review, November 1971, pp. 41-44; also Reprint 2773.

Results of study of fringe benefits for urban plant and officeworkers, 1960-70, in six major industry divisions, indicate that workers received a much better fringe benefit package in 1970 than in 1960. Based on 1970 data from the Area Wage Survey Program, BLS Bulletin 1660-92, 1971.

INCENTIVES

Improving Productivity: Labor and Management Approaches. See under Productivity and Technological Developments.

Time and Incentive Pay Practices in Urban Areas. By John Howell Cox, Division of Occupational Wage Structures. In Monthly Labor Review, December 1971, pp. 53-56.

Findings of study show the incidence of incentive pay has decreased among office workers and plantworkers over past 7 years while prevalence of formal pay plans has increased. Based on information from occupational wage surveys in metropolitan areas conducted between July 1968 and June 1970.

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

HOW TO OBTAIN BLS PUBLICATIONS

PLACING ORDERS

Publications may be obtained by using the order blanks which follow. Note that separate order forms must be used for free items and for items that are sold. Subscriptions and orders for individual publications should be ordered through the Bureau's Regional Offices, or directly from the Superintendent of Documents. Free publications are available from the Regional Offices while the supply lasts.

MAILING LISTS

Your name can be placed on the Bureau's mailing lists for press releases and announcements issued by the Washington office. Check the appropriate box on p. —;return the form to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Room 1539 GAO Building, Washington, D.C. 20212.

REGIONAL SERVICES

The BLS has eight regional offices located throughout the country, which have been designated as agents of the Superintendent of Documents for the purpose of selling priced publications. Each office sends out periodic announcements describing the priced and free materials available through them. To be added to the mailing list of the regional office in your area, write to the office at the address nearest you. Regional office addresses and States served are listed on p. 22.

OUT-OF-PRINT TITLES

The National Technical Information Service (NTIS) now has available copies of various out-of-print bulletins and reports—"classics" of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. See list on p 50. Direct your order with remittance or coupons to the NTIS; give the accession number and the title of the publication. Almost all the documents in the collection are priced at $3 each for paper copies and 95 cents in microfiche. An exception is PB 183642 (BLS Bulletin 604) which is priced at $6 in papercopy and 95 cents in microfilm.
